1. Why are there war graves in this area?

Commonwealth forces were on the Italian front between November 1917 and November 1918. The Commonwealth troops carried out continuous patrol work across the River Piave, as well as much successful counter battery work. In January 1918, an additional sector of the defence was taken over by the Commonwealth troops. Men who died in defending the Piave from December 1917, to March 1918, and those who fell on the west of the river during the Battle of Vittorio Veneto (October-November 1918) are buried in this area. Giavera British Cemetery contains 417 Commonwealth burials from the First World War.
